Demonstration of Ability to Function in Emergency Situations

Georgetown Telephone Company (“Company”) has in place a Disaster Relief Plan. The Company’s voice network is able to remain functional in emergency situations. Georgetown Telephone Company has a reasonable amount of back-up power to ensure functionality without an external power source, is able to reroute traffic around damaged facilities, and is capable of managing traffic spikes resulting from emergency situations.

Georgetown Telephone Company hereby certifies that it is able to function in emergency situations as set forth in §54.202(a)(2)¹ and pursuant to orders in Mississippi Public Service Commission Docket No. 2005-AD-662. The Company’s voice network is designed to remain functional in emergency situations without an external power source, is able to reroute traffic around damaged facilities, and is capable of managing traffic spikes resulting from emergency situations as required by Section 54.202(a)(2). The Company can reroute traffic around damaged facilities. Changing call routing translations will also allow the Company to manage traffic spikes throughout its network, as emergency situations require.

Specifically, each central office building is supplied with standby generators and battery back-up that enable the central office to keep running until power is restored so long as fuel is available, or until system changes are made to reroute traffic. The Company has battery backup at all office locations and in its electronic equipment sites. Length of run time is determined by the equipment serving the area and the number of customers working out of the equipment. The company’s standby generators and battery back-up support voice network equipment should an emergency situation occur. The Company complies with the FCC’s backup power requirements, effective October 16, 2015.

¹ Section 54.202(a)(2) requires ETCs that are designated by the Commission to “demonstrate its ability to remain functional in emergency situations, including a demonstration that it has a reasonable amount of back-up power to ensure functionality without an external power source, is able to reroute traffic around damaged facilities, and is capable of managing traffic spikes resulting from emergency situations.”

Georgetown Telephone Company 280456

Line 1030

Georgetown Telephone Company provides 1 Mbps/512kbps unlimited broadband, which is available to all customers in its study area, at a rate of $49.95/month. This rate is higher, and the speeds slower, than the FCC's benchmark rate for broadband. Georgetown is located in a very rural part of Mississippi, and the costs to deploy broadband are much higher than in more densely populated areas. Georgetown's customer density is very low, which makes it difficult for the company to recoup costs of deploying broadband networks. Georgetown has had trouble securing backhaul at a reasonable rate, and is currently undergoing a change in ownership which has halted investments temporarily. As such, Georgetown has chosen a rate for the broadband services it can offer that it felt was both reasonable for its customers and provided some ability for the company to recover its investments. Georgetown has some areas in its study area where 10/1 Mbps is feasible, but cost prohibitive for customers and the Company.
